Black History Fact of the Day: Essynce Moore is a 17 year old entrepreneur, trendsetter, public speaker, and author. When she was 12 years old she signed her first book deal and released her first book all about the struggles of middle school. Since then, Essynce has not only written more books that address the topics of bullying, cliques, and surviving middle school, but she is also the only teen ever to have a school district make her books required reading for its students.
